

Interviews with Clients

Clients may have only a vague concept of requirements.

- Prepare before you meet with them
- Keep full notes
- If you don't understand, delve further
- Small group meetings are often most effective

Clients often confuse the current system with the underlying requirement.